HLL Alumni Lecture Series: Dean Allbritton

Dean Allbritton (MA, Syracuse University; PhD, Stony Brook) is Associate Professor and Chair of Spanish at Colby College. His work analyzes representations of illness and health in contemporary Spanish culture and media as focalizing points for larger discourses of national and societal health. More broadly, he has interests in the fields of illness and disability studies, film theory, Spanish film, and cultural studies. He is currently working on a book manuscript, Feeling Sick: The Early Years of AIDS in Spain, which examines the cultural history of the early years of AIDS in Spain (1981-1987) as it has been told through television and print media, ephemeral products of visual culture, fiction film, and the so-called risk groups that lived through the epidemic.
